Strategic Management – Pointing your Business in the Right Direction

Christopher Swart

B.Sc. M. En. Programme in Project Management

Is your business floundering because of a lack of long-term strategic planning – a lack of “vision”? Strategy is the direction and scope of an organisation over the long-term. In other words, strategy is about:

- Direction: Where the business is trying to get to in the long term.
- Markets/Scope: Which markets should a business compete in and what kinds of activities are involved in such markets?
- Advantage: How can the business perform better than the competition in those markets?
- Resources: What resources (skill, assets, finance, relationships, technical competence, and facilities) are required in order to be able to compete?
- Environment: What external, environmental factors affect the businesses’ ability to compete?
- Stakeholders: What are the values and expectations of those who have power in and around the business?

Strategic management gives a business and the people that work in it, direction, hope and vision and is therefore a recipe for success!

Dates: 16 & 18 February

Tues & Thurs

18:30 – 20:30

Sessions: 2

Cost: R 290

Project Management – Planning for Success!

Christopher Swart

B.Sc. M. En. Programme in Project Management

- Part One: The Triple Constraint

The essence of Project Management is the ability to manage the relationship between the tasks / activities / work of a project to be completed on time and within budget. To do this you need to understand this relationship known as the “triple constraint”. In part one of this course you will explore the notion that success in a project is none other than to follow a set of instructions similar to that of a recipe. However, this recipe needs to be reliable and accurate.

- Part Two: Scope Management

Scope Management is the process to complete a “to do” list within the project plan, or the “project recipe”. Why is this the cornerstone to project success? We explore the typical pitfalls in defining the tasks to be completed, and how this is related to what needs to be delivered, and why so many projects fail at this level.

- Part Three: Time Management

In Project Management we plan to start each task identified on time, and to finish it within the estimated timeframe planned. Inevitably this will not happen, but we need to adjust our planning continuously to still finish the project as close as possible to the initial estimate for completion. We explore the tools that Project Managers use to do this, such as the Gantt Chart.

- Part Four: Cost Management

When we need to estimate the budget for a project, that estimate need to be as accurate as possible. For this we use the ABC of Cost Management, i.e. Activity Based Costing. Together with the cost of equipment and materials, this will constitute our budget, but we then have to control this budget. We explore the tools for doing this.

- Finally: Variance at Completion

What are the classical mistakes for not finishing a project within the estimated time? And why do projects inevitably run over budget? We look at ways to avoid this and the tools readily available to manage this process.

Dates: 23 Feb – 23 March

Tuesdays

18:30 – 20:30

Sessions: 5

Cost: R 650

LEADERSHIP/MANAGEMENT SKILLS

Accessing the Essence of Leadership

Milena Gevers

M. Social Science / Integral, Leadership & Confidence Coach

There are many differing perspectives on what good leadership should look like. And when we look at the world, we can see that just because someone might be appointed in a leadership position, it does not automatically make them a good leader. It's the actions they take as a leader to carry a vision forward and not only inspire the group they are leading to bring it into effect, but possibly have a ripple effect into the industry or even society at large. In this 2-part workshop series, you will unpack leadership and use reflection as a tool to understand the responsibility of it. Using coaching type activities, you will explore the process of defining a vision and what that vision means to you as leader - whether current or potential and explore some somatic leadership embodiment practices to work with. Whether its leadership in school, in community or business contexts, all are welcome.

Effective Collaboration in the Workplace

Milena Gevers

M. Social Science / Integral, Leadership & Confidence Coach

Managers are often caught in a tricky dynamic of being pressured to achieve work outcomes on deadlines but needing a team of people to give you a required level of performance in order to do so. What easily happens is that managers feel without a choice but to prioritise the former for business purposes, which often makes the latter a continuous struggle around productivity, often leading to micro-management. This workshop looks at effective collaboration and ways to build a work culture that is based on more connection, empathy, trust and accountability, therefore supporting performance improvements, increased productivity and longer staff retention rates.

Date: 4 March Thursday 18:30 – 20:30 Sessions: 1 Cost: R140

Being Tech-Savvy! Demystifying the Jargon around Technology

Craig Murray

Computer Lecturer/ Head: IT Infrastructure & Network Administration

Do you get confused when your children, grandchildren, friends or family rattle off technology jargon and automatically expect you to understand what they mean? Looking to buy a new TV or a computer only to be absolutely bombarded with jargon and smooth sales talk that leaves you with less clarity than before you entered the shop? Have no idea what type of internet connection you'll need at home and don't know what on earth LTE or fibre is? If you answered yes to any of these questions, then this course is for you. Over the course of the evening, this course will demystify things such as internet connection types, smart TV vs. a normal TV, tablet vs. iPad and help you choose a streaming service that is worth your money amongst other modern marvels. In this relaxed environment, you can ask questions to your heart's content and get answers that won't leave you feeling like you need a PhD in jargon.

The pace of technology is only going to keep accelerating. This is your chance to get clued up, be armed with better information to make the best purchase possible for your money and best of all, show the young whippersnappers that technology is there to benefit everyone!

CODING COURSES

Coding with Python for High School Students & CAT Teachers

Octavia Chidiwa

M.Sc. Computer Science, IT Project Administrator, Computer Trainer

Level Up Geek Up Academy

This course aims to prepare students for the Fourth Industrial Revolution with the creative, collaborative, design thinking, and computational thinking skills of the future. Learning computer science, and programming encourages creativity, problem-solving, ethics and collaboration. You will have fun learning Python as a programming language and challenging yourselves to think like computer programmers. How nice and cool is it to create something from ground up? Python is used across diverse fields from web and game development to machine learning, AI, scientific computing and academic research. It is easy to learn as a first language and a valuable skill set to have in any programmer's stack because of its diverse usage. Once you learn it you can find opportunities in web development, data science, machine learning, AI, web scrapping, game development, scientific and numeric computing, the list goes on, making it the versatile language to learn. At the end of this course a student should be able to write a basic program using Python.

Coding for Those from a Programming Background

Octavia Chidiwa

Level Up Geek Up Academy

If you are looking to add a new programming language to your stack, then this Python crash course is for you! Python language is expressive and productive, so you can create solutions quickly and others can understand it easily. One of the fundamental ideas behind Python is to facilitate an easily readable code. The syntax of Python is simple, clean and easy to understand. Unlike many other programming languages, its code is relatively easy to read as it resembles a part of everyday English that we speak. Python is a great addition to your skillset no matter where your career ends up taking you. With Python you can build simple scripts to complex applications. You can do it quickly, safely and with fewer lines of code than you might think possible. Python is fun, expressive, its readable style, quick editing, run development cycle meaning you can sit down writing code, rather than fighting compilers and complex syntax. Python will grow with you as your experiments become prototypes, your prototypes become products. Python makes the experience of writing software easier and enjoyable. At the end of this course you should have a good foundation and background for further learning if you want to become an expert.

Being Tech-Savvy! Demystifying the Jargon around Technology

Craig Murray

Computer Lecturer/ Head: IT Infrastructure & Network Administration

Do you get confused when your children, grandchildren, friends or family rattle off technology jargon and automatically expect you to understand what they mean? Looking to buy a new TV or a computer only to be absolutely bombarded with jargon and smooth sales talk that leaves you with less clarity than before you entered the shop? Have no idea what type of internet connection you'll need at home and don't know what on earth LTE or fibre is? If you answered yes to any of these questions, then this course is for you. Over the course of the evening, this course will demystify things such as internet connection types, smart TV vs a normal TV, tablet vs iPad and help you choose a streaming service that is worth your money amongst other modern marvels. In this relaxed environment, you can ask questions to your heart's content and get answers that won't leave you feeling like you need a PhD in jargon.

The pace of technology is only going to keep accelerating. This is your chance to get clued up, be armed with better information to make the best purchase possible for your money and best of all, show the young whippersnappers that technology is there to benefit everyone!

PHOTOGRAPHY & MEDIA

Introduction to Photography – Getting to Know your Camera

Craig Murray

Photographer/ Photography Lecturer

Do you have a digital camera but feel confused by all the options on offer? A Christmas or birthday present that you haven't made good use of yet because the camera seems intimidating? Come along to this course where the basics and foundation of good photography will be presented. Technical terms such as aperture, shutter speed and ISO will be covered, but so will subjects such as good light, framing and composition, as well as getting to grips with your sometimes-confusing camera controls. Camera accessories will also be discussed, for those who want to and are ready to take the next small step forwards on this incredible journey.

Please bring your cameras along to the course, with the camera battery fully charged – you will be taking pictures on the day. You can also bring your camera manual along if you've read something you don't understand and would like some clarity. The course fee includes mid-morning tea and snacks.

LANGUAGES, WRITING, EDITING & PUBLISHING

Xhosa for Beginners

Dr Tessa Dowling

Ph.D. Senior Lecturer in African Languages
Educators earn 10 CPDT points

You've always wanted to learn Xhosa – if only to understand what people are saying about you! But eish, the time, those clicks, people speak so fast! Suwara! (Don't worry!) This course is designed just for you! You will learn how to click – not just with your tongue, but with Xhosa speakers – by using simple vocabulary, phrases and grammar to great advantage. You will also be taught how to listen to Xhosa by being exposed to some jokes and songs, and even rugby commentary and make-up tutorials.

We are very fortunate to have Tessa presenting this course. She has been described by a leading language academic as 'both erudite and hilarious'. She holds a PhD in African languages from the University of Cape Town, where she currently lectures. She has received a provincial award for promoting multilingualism and has taught all kinds of adults in fields including politics, business and NGOs, how to speak Xhosa. She has written textbooks for the learning of African languages, as well as English, and is frequently called upon by the media to comment on issues relating to African languages. She writes serious (prize-winning) academic articles and lighter humorous pieces on African languages and is a popular speaker at conferences.

Having begun her study of Xhosa at the age of twenty-five, Tessa is living proof that an English-speaking South African adult can master an African language.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT, PSYCHOLOGY & NEUROSCIENCEIf you Can't Trust Yourself, then Who can you Trust? A Psychology Student's Experiences of Living with OCDRobyn Jansen van Vuuren*M.A. Psychological Research

In December 2009, just as Robyn was trying to finish her Master's thesis, she was diagnosed with Obsessive Compulsive Disorder (OCD). The truth, however, is that she had been living with this disorder since at least 1996 (when she was just 10 years old). She lived in silence and pain for over 13 years until her life had almost completely shut down and she finally reached out and asked for help. She had spent most of her life unable to trust any thought that she had because she wasn't sure whether she had actually performed the actions she was thinking about, or whether they were just imaginings – her mind was like a prison. Getting help was both the scariest and most freeing thing that she has ever done. Mental illness, and especially OCD, is often misunderstood and inaccurately (or at least narrowly) portrayed by popular culture and social media. The aim of Robyn's presentation is to present another (less known and more personal) side of mental illness, and to begin to highlight that mental illness is not something to be ashamed or afraid of, but something that needs to be spoken about and dealt with openly.

Date: 17 March Wednesday 18:30 – 20:30 Sessions: 1 Cost: R140

Intelligence & IQ: The TruthRobyn Jansen van Vuuren*M.A. Psychological Research

The term "IQ Score" is often used as an indication of how successful society believes an individual will be in his or her life. However, intelligence is a multifaceted construct that is difficult to define and is often misunderstood and misused. This course aims to equip you with some of the facts about intelligence and will discuss (a) the history of the concepts of intelligence and IQ, (b) some of the more popular theories of intelligence, (c) alternative theories of intelligence, (d) how intelligence is measured, and (e) factors that may affect intelligence.

Accessing the Essence of Leadership

Milena Gevers

M. Social Science / Integral, Leadership & Confidence Coach

There are many differing perspectives on what good leadership should look like. And when we look at the world, we can see that just because someone might be appointed in a leadership position, it does not automatically make them a good leader. It's the actions they take as a leader to carry a vision forward and not only inspire the group they are leading to bring it into effect, but possibly have a ripple effect into the industry or even society at large. In this 2-part workshop series, you will unpack leadership and use reflection as a tool to understand the responsibility of it. Using coaching type activities, you will explore the process of defining a vision and what that vision means to you as leader - whether current or potential, and explore some somatic leadership embodiment practices to work with. Whether its leadership in school, in community or business contexts, all are welcome.

CLASSROOM MANAGEMENT & LEARNER-RELATED COURSES

Changing Behaviour through Progressive Discipline

Stephen Price

B.Sc. H.D.E. B.Ed. Principal
Educators Earn 5 CPDT points

Keep your cool in class by implementing a progressive discipline model of classroom management, designed to release pupil learner pressure points before they escalate into conflict. Progressive discipline is a style of learner management that focuses on changing behaviour rather than punishment. It is a behaviour modification model which has been used successfully in many schools worldwide and what is significant about it is that instead of simply punishing inappropriate behaviour, it reinforces positive behaviour and actively engages learners and their parents in the process, ensuring accountability on the part of the learner for inappropriate behaviour. Explore this model and maximize control and minimize stress in your classroom.
